I love this picture of my kitten! I wish the blue and orange colors would translate over all computers. I know that what I see here will be different on another screen. What I see on my phone is even different from the computer. When I choose palettes, I like to go with “feeling” aesthetic. Blue and orange are nice complimentary colors and using a muted palette gets more of “chill and relax-in-the-shade-outside summer vibe”. I love to hit up the younger generation for a vibe check, and my 18-year-old daughter loves this color combo.

This is a pretty simple color palette. Our high school colors are red, white, and black, with red being our base color. When choosing any kind of supporting color with a palette already ranging from both sides of the spectrum, with a bold color in the middle, gold and silver are great supports. They denote power and richness, and compliment a bold red.
